THE GO WEST FILM FESTIVAL RIDES AGAIN

When people generally think of Western movies, a whole saddlebag of stereotypes spring to mind. Think of all the outlaws we’ve watched crashing through dusty saloon doors, slamming down shots of cheap whisky, sweaty brows glistening and beady eyes narrowed against an inevitable showdown. In those showdowns, blood is spilled. Someone dies. Usually the hero rides off into a sunset that looks suspiciously like the ones that set behind Monument Valley. Do you know the movies I'm talking about? Of course you do because like me, you're a Western movie fan! Consider yourself in good company when the Go West Film Festival rides into town November 9th-14th.

MAKE YOUR OWN HOLIDAY

Ah, Thanksgiving - the most wonderful time of the year!

Wait… is that supposed to be Christmas? Not in my book.

How I love Thanksgiving, let me count the ways!
1. Cooking, cooking, cooking... eating, eating, eating
2. Being with the ones I love - my family who live away or my friends who live nearby
3. Costumed turkey trots
4. A little something we Americans call football.

T-Day is about the four Fs: food, family, 5Ks, football.

FEATURES

Kicking off this year’s film festival at the Kress Cinema and Lounge, Stagecoach remains a true classic, having elevated the Western to new cinematic heights in 1939 when the genre was sinking into B-grade oblivion. Essentially a morality play, Stagecoach embraced the framework of the traditional Western but infused it with new literary and stylistic aplomb. Western films once again showcased multi-dimensional characters, intelligent scripts and nuanced themes. As the educated, but disgraced alcoholic frontier doctor Josiah Boone in Stagecoach observes, “I’m not only a philosopher, sir, I’m a fatalist. Somewhere, sometime, there may be the right bullet or the wrong bottle waiting for Josiah Boone. Why worry about when or where?” Westerns have the best lines ever.

But don’t think the Go West Film Festival is only screening classic Western movies. The beauty of Western film is its simultaneous reverence for western tropes and sheer love of bucking those tropes, or entirely pushing the boundaries of the Western altogether. A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night and Brokeback Mountain, both screening at the festival, definitely fall into the latter category. Upending more than a few Western tropes, A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night is an atmospheric cross between Let the Right One In and The Last Picture Show. Replacing the ubiquitous Stetson with a billowing chadoor, “The Girl with No Name” skateboards through a desolate landscape instituting a singular code of honor, giving this alt-western a terrific feminist twist. And, of course, Brokeback Mountain still makes us cry with its achingly beautiful story of love and loss.

And then there is Hanna Ranch, a thoughtful documentary on the balance one visionary individual sought between a traditional way of life and environmentally-sustainable ranching practices long before it was eco-fashionable. A Q&A with the filmmaker, Mitch Dickman, will follow the screening at UNC’s Michener Library, Lindou Auditorium.

Another documentary, Reel Injun, explores Native American stereotypes in Western film, an ongoing challenge to Western films, past and present. Clint Eastwood, Jim Jarmusch, Sacheen Littlefeather, Adam Beach, and Graham Greene, among others, weigh in on the legacy of cinematic myth-making.

We’ll also have a special Veterans Day program with live music by local Western music performer Ray Delgado and a screening of the WWII Roy Rogers gem, King of the Cowboys, to honor our veterans, young and old. The films mentioned here are only a sampling of the other films being screened throughout the week. The library will be offering special High Noon screenings at noon, of course, and AIMS will screen another John Wayne classic, The Cowboys at the Ed Beatty Hall Theater. Finally, what would a film festival be without a wrap party? The Kress Cinema and Lounge will play host to an evening of fun trivia and door prizes along with a screening of the perennial, crowd-pleasing classic, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid on Saturday evening. For a more detailed listing, grab a print program or go to our website www.MyLibrary.us/events/hot-topics/go-west-film-festival for more information.

Thank you to the following for making this film festival possible:
Thanksgiving is a great motivator to try a fancy new dish, get those plane tickets to visit loved ones, try your first fun run, and to be the loudest and proudest football fan on your street. But if you don’t want to do any of these things, don’t! The beauty of Thanksgiving is its ability to become whatever you want it to be. Have Thanksgiving with your neighbors! Don’t cook and have a Game of Thrones marathon! Tired of turkey? Just make stuffing and four pumpkin pies! Wish it were Halloween? Get started on next year’s costume!

No matter your plans for Thanksgiving, HPLD is here to help. We’ve got cookbooks, travel guides, tools to help you research your family tree, art programs and crafting books, couch-to-5K training guides, holiday music to stream for free or check out on CD, and of course the latest and greatest TV series on DVD. Just let us know what you’re looking for and we’ll deliver - you’ll be thankful that you asked. Happy Thanksgiving!

ADULTS | WRITING COLORADO WITH NATURALIST KEVIN COOK
November 12, 12:00-1:30 pm
Farr Regional Library

Writing Colorado, a year-long series, features twelve writers whose books reveal the essential character of this state we call home. A single event can shape how a person regards life; a string of events can shape a person’s beliefs and actions for the rest of his life. In Wasp Farm Howard Ensign Evans described how wasps have 13 ways to carry their prey after paralyzing it with a sting. When he moved to Colorado, his passion for insects carried him into every aspect of Rocky Mountain wildlife. His last book, A Naturalist’s Years in the Rocky Mountains, parallels his wasps by presenting 19 ways to engage nature.

FILMS AT HIGH NOON

Slow West (2015, John Maclean, 84 min., Rated R)
Monday, November 9, 12 P.M. - Centennial Park Library

Filmed in New Zealand, Slow West is set in 19th Century Colorado, a land of wandering European immigrants and savagely mistreated Native Americans. It is here that a naive 16-year-old Scottish boy, searching for his lost love, saddles up with a world-weary guide, expertly played by Michael Fassbender. Discussion Leader: Margaret Thompson

EVENING AT THE KRESS

Monday, November 9 - The Kress Cinema & Lounge

6 P.M. - Kick-Off Party & light reception
7 P.M. - Stagecoach (1939, John Ford, 96 min., Not Rated)

They say you never really get to know people until you travel with them. Catch a ride on director John Ford’s iconic Stagecoach and find out why. Alas, hostile Indians don’t help matters, either. John Wayne, in his first big role, takes all the bumps in stride.
Discussion Leaders: David Caldwell & Ron Edgerton

FILMS AT HIGH NOON

For a Few Dollars More (1965, Sergio Leone, 132 min., Rated R)
Tuesday, November 10, 12 P.M. - Centennial Park Library

In this second entry in Sergio Leone’s “Dollars Trilogy,” bounty hunter Manco (Clint Eastwood) partners with Col. Mortimer (Lee Van Cleef) to infiltrate the gang of homicidal bandit, Indio (Gian Maria Volonte). Outstanding cinematography and brilliant score add to what is already one of the best Spaghetti Westerns ever made.
Discussion Leader: Rob Walker
EVENING AT THE KRESS

Tuesday, November 10 - The Kress Cinema & Lounge
6 P.M. - Doors open
7 P.M. - Reel Injun (2010, Neil Diamond, 85 min., Not Rated)

Reel Injun explores over 100 years of Hollywood portrayals of Native Americans. Featuring interviews by Clint Eastwood, Jim Jarmusch, Sacheen Littlefeather, Adam Beach, and Graham Greene, among others, this documentary will provoke, incite, and inspire important discussion about the dynamics of cinematic mythmaking and problematic representations of Native Americans in film. Discussion Leader: Sarah Cornish

---

EVENING AT THE KRESS

Wednesday, November 11 - The Kress Cinema & Lounge
6 P.M. - Music by Ray Delgado
7 P.M. - King of the Cowboys (1943, Joseph Kane, 67 min., Not Rated)

Celebrate Veterans Day with live music and a movie! Relax as local musician Ray Delgado entertains us with a selection of western favorites. Then sit back and enjoy King of the Cowboys, starring Roy Rogers and his horse Trigger, true-blue patriots who team up to thwart the efforts of a band of WWII saboteurs. We will have door prizes to honor veterans. Discussion Leader: Ron Edgerton

FILMS AT HIGH NOON

Brokeback Mountain (2005, Ang Lee, 134 min., Rated R)
Thursday, November 12, 12 P.M. - Centennial Park Library

Based on a story by Annie Proulx, Ang Lee's Brokeback Mountain set new standards for depicting the beauty and harshness of the American West. Those extremes also exist in the relationship between Ennis Del Mar and Jack Twist, who utters to his partner the now-famous line, “I wish I knew how to quit you.” Discussion Leader: David Caldwell

EVENING AT UNC

Thursday, November 12 - UNC Michener Library, Lindou Auditorium
7 P.M. - Hanna Ranch (2014, Mitch Dickman, 73 min., Not Rated)

Documentary about visionary Kirk Hanna, a Colorado rancher who fought for environmentally-sustainable ranching practices. Hanna's passionate struggle to preserve and balance environmentally sound and traditional ways of ranching in the face of encroaching development and land misuse will evoke important conversation. Discussion Leaders: International Film Series Students. Q&A with Director, Mitch Dickman.
FILMS AT HIGH NOON

Unforgiven (1992, Clint Eastwood, 131 min., Rated R)

Friday, November 13, 12 P.M. - Farr Regional Library

William Munny (Clint Eastwood, acting & directing) is a retired outlaw who has started over. Recently widowed, he struggles to raise his two children and is lured back into his past for one last paying job. The result is violence that impacts everyone around him, including his own soul. Discussion Leader: Stacey Campbell

EVENING AT UNC

Friday, November 13 - UNC Michener Library, Lindou Auditorium

7 P.M. - A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night (2014, Ana Lily Amirpour, 101 min., Not Rated)

Turning a few western tropes on its head, A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night is an atmospheric cross between Let the Right One In and The Last Picture Show. Replacing the Stetson with a billowing chador, “The Girl with No Name” skateboards through a desolate landscape instituting a singular code of honor, giving this alt-western a terrific feminist twist. Discussion Leaders: Cruel April and International Film Series Students

FILMS AT HIGH NOON

The Cowboys (1972, Mark Rydell, 134 min., Rated PG)

Saturday, November 14, 12 P.M. - Aims Community College, Ed Beatty Hall Theater, #102

A cattle drive being led by eleven kids? Only the Duke could head up this team. With Bruce Dern as a disturbed cattle rustler and Roscoe Lee Browne as the mysterious cook, this ensemble film is one of John Wayne's more interesting late Westerns. Discussion Leader: Greg Driskill

EVENING AT THE KRESS

Saturday, November 14 - The Kress Cinema & Lounge

6 P.M. - Wrap-Up Party

7 P.M. - Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969, George Roy Hill, 110 min., Rated PG)

Released in 1969, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid resonated with audiences divided by the war in Vietnam. The country was looking for new heroes and they found them in the well-matched acting talents of Paul Newman, Robert Redford and Katharine Ross. This classic western is also graced with an unforgettable soundtrack. Discussion Leader: Bob Kahn
